

ADAE FINE ART ACADEMY STUDENT EXHIBITION

August 27-October 3, 2015

NHFPL Ives Gallery | Ives Main Library

Adae Fine Art Academy Student Exhibition presents artwork by students from this New Haven community art school in celebration of their 10 year anniversary. Kwadwo Adae, artist, teacher and curator selected works from his students (ages 7 – 100!) representing New Haven area citizens of all ages, backgrounds, skill levels, and experiences.

About Adae Fine Art Academy

Located in New Haven’s Ninth Square neighborhood, this community art school has been working with children, young adults, adults, and elderly students since 2005. Offering no generic “Beginner” or “Advanced” courses, the Academy utilizes a unique method in the teaching of their students; everyone is taught at their own pace and is given lessons for development from the point they begin at. This, along with allowing artists to choose their media and subject matter, works especially well with the types of artists involved in their offsite art lessons – the elderly, young adults in mental health clinics, children in afterschool programs, and those in transitional living facilities for people with schizophrenia.
