

Democracy in Crisis: Conversations with New Haven Scholars

Presented in partnership with Public Humanities at Yale

Tuesdays at 6pm

Community Program Room

Democracy and Inequality: Lessons from Ancient Greece

September 25

Emily Greenwood, Professor of Classics, Yale University

Barack Obama and the Rise of Trumpism: Reflections on Recent US History

October 9

Matthew Jacobson, Professor of American Studies, Yale University

How Fascism Works

October 30

Jason Stanley, Professor of Philosophy, Yale University

Corporations and Democracies

November 27

Doug Rogers, Professor of Anthropology, Yale University

The Presidency and the News Media:

New Challenges to Institutions and Legitimacy

January 29

Jennifer Hopper, Assistant Professor of Political Science, Southern Connecticut State University

Race and Immigration in the Contemporary US

February 26

Alicia Schmidt Comacho, Daniel HoSang, Stephen Pitti, Professors of American Studies and Ethnicity, Race, & Migration, Yale University

Heritage, Memory, and the Future City

March 26

Elihu Rubin, Associate Professor of Architecture, Urbanism, and American Studies, Yale University

America's Peculiar Mix of Populism and Plutocracy —and Why It's Perilous

April 16

Jacob Hacker, Professor of Political Science, Yale University

Reckoning with Settler Colonialism, Here and Now

April 30

Kehaulani Kauanui, Professor of American Studies, Wesleyan University

PARKING—Yale's Lot 51, located on Temple Street at Wall Street, is available after 4:30 pm for the public. Visit the newly opened G Café Bakery at Ives Squared and get 5% off with your NHFPL library card!